NATIONAL CHILD SAFETY ORGANIZATION SELECTS ST. AUGUSTINE FOR LOCAL INITIATIVE

St. Augustine, Florida July 23, 2009:

For over 18 years KinderVision, a nationally acclaimed child safety educational program has worked tirelessly to protect children, teens and young adults from abductions and sexual exploitation and now they will be in St. Augustine.

St. Augustine and surrounding areas have been chosen as one of the first areas in the nation to have a local KinderVision presence. After years of success on a national level the next logical step is to create a grassroots type organization to work with local schools, children's organizations, churches and local law enforcement agencies to create the safest environment possible for the children in our community.

"Our goal is to make St. Augustine the safest place in the nation for children," says Doug Sebastian, Founder of KinderVision.

"I commend and thank KinderVision and their supporters and affiliates for their commitment to the safety of Florida's youth," Charlie Crist, Governor, State of Florida

KinderVision has partnered with First Coast News to create one of the most comprehensive online child safety educational sites in the country. You can access the site <http://www.kindervision.org>.
